Andy Fry

Brooklyn, NY

a-fry.io

andyfry01@gmail.com

github.com/andyfry01/

801-910-8847

A full stack web developer with a love for building good things.

Skills

Vanilla JS	ES6	Node	Handlebars
HTML5	React.js	Express	Wireframing
CSS3	Ruby on Rails	MongoDB	jQuery

Experience

General Assembly
New York, NY
Feb 2016–May 2016

GA is a 12-week intensive web development boot camp covering frontend and backend web dev with a focus on full stack JavaScript, React, and Ruby on Rails. Over the course of the program we completed several major individual and group projects.

GA Projects

GeoTube	Citi Bike Station Directions	"Country Music" Song Finder
A tool for finding, visualizing and viewing YouTube videos tagged with geolocation data, built with React.js.	Combining the Google Maps and Citi Bike APIs to provide comprehensive walking and cycling directions.	Joining the Last.fm and Spotify APIs to discover music from all over the world, built in a team of three.

Freelance Linguist
New York, NY
Sep 2013–Feb 2016

I worked on a freelance basis as a German to English translator and quality manager. This involved constant, timely communication with multiple parties between several translation agencies, careful research of terminology, and painstaking commitment to quality and consistency.

Education

Ithaca College
Ithaca, NY

B.A. English Literature, Minors in German and Writing, cum laude. Studied abroad in both London and Berlin.

Personal Interests

Adventure. I walked the 500-mile Camino de Santiago in 2011, rode my bike to Nova Scotia from my front door in Brooklyn in 2014, and love to spend my weekends exploring the city, discovering new things, and drinking deeply from the cup of Life.